of the Northwest.

Special to the Globe. ANOKA, July 13 .- The editors of Minnesota never had a more royal reception and entertainment than was given to them to-day by the citizens of Anoka on the occasion of the twentieth annual meeting of the State Editors' and Publishers' association in that beautiful city. The guests were met at the train by a committee of citi-zens with a band, and were driven in carriages to the Masonic temple, where the meeting of the association was held. The association was called to order at 10 o'clock a.m. by President Costello. An appropriate address of welcome was delivered by Mayor Newcomber, of Anoka, after which the association set-tled down to the regular routine of business. As this was

THE TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY

THE SALE ANNULLED.

Important Decision of Judge Nelson, of the Circuit Court.

Special to the Globe ANOKA, Minn., July 13 .- An important decision was rendered by Judge Nelson here to-day in a case in the United States circuit court involving the identical questions which arose in the celebrated Chancey-Waas case recently debrated Chancey-Waas case recently decided by the supreme court of Minnesota. Judge Nelson's decision is just the reverse of that of the state supreme court. It was a case from Mille Lac county, and the suit was brought by J. P. Woodbury against B. M. Van Alstine and others to recover land valued at $25,000, which had been returned delinquent and sold under a tax sale of 1881. It appeared in evidence that the tax had been paid by the orignal owner, tax had been paid by the original owner, but the land had been returned delin-quent by the tax officials. Judge Nelson decided that where the taxes had been paid the land never became forfeited, and that the state never acquired any title or interest in the land by virtue of the tax-sale proceedings. A decree was entered declaring that the tax, judgment and sale be annulled and cancelled and decree a reconveyance of the land to the original owner. The case was argued by G. W. Morrill and Biglow, Flandrau & Squires for the plaintiff and Otis for the defendants.

Heavy Lumber Deal.

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., July 13 .- A combination, headed by Weyerhauser, bination, headed by Weyerhauser, Denkman & Rutledge, of Rock Island, and embracing Cable, of Rock Island, Gardner, Bachelor & Wells, of Lyons, Io., and local lumbermen, has purchased all the pine land tributary to the Chippewa river, owned by the Knapp, Stout Lumber company, of Menomonie, Wis. This company has no mills on the Chippewa river, and hence sells out to other manufacturers. The tracts sold contain 150,000,000 feet, consideration $80,000. Henry W. Sage has sold to the ooo. Special to the Globe.

DULUTH, Minn., July 13.—Charles Sellers, of the lumber firm of Sellers & Owens, and one of the commissioners of St. Louis county, at Tower, was badly hurt at 1:30 p. m. to-day by a saw burst-ing in one of his mills. It is feared his injuries will prove fatal. Mr. Sellers is well known in Minnesota as a business wen known in Minnesota as a business man, and has many friends who regret the accident. He was formerly in the lumber and logging business at Chip-pewa Falls, Wis. Mr. Sellers is also mayor of the village of Tower.

Daring Forgeries.

Special to the Globe. CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., July 13.-A series of eight forgeries were committed here vesterday for amounts varying fron $20 to $40. The work was bungling and of the most bold-faced character. The writing of the signa-tures of various lumbermen was with-out any attempt at imitation of their hand writing. The checks were passed on tradesmen for goods to small amounts, and the difference obtained in cash.

Good Crops at Yankton.

YANKTON, Dak., July 13 .- Harvesting of small grain is in progress in Yankton and adjoining counties. Barley will average twenty-four bushels to the acre. Wheat and other small grains are above the average, and farmers are jubilant. The reported presence of chinch bugs and grasshoppers in this vicinity is untrue. There are no grasshoppers in the territory, and no chinch bugs within a radius of 100 miles.

Suicide by Drowning.

pecial to the Globe. CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., July 13 .-The old gunsmith named Thiming, who has had a small shop here for a year or two past, coming here from one of the big gun stores in St. Paul, committed suicide by drowning a day or two since. A son of John Foster, of Eagleton, was drowned Sunday last while in bathing.

The Full Vote.

ABERDEEN, Dak., July 13 .- Full re urns from Brown county give Aberdeen ,082 majority over Columbia, over 4,000 votes being polled. The canvass will be made Tuesday. Trouble is feared when the records are to be removed.

Received Their Diplomas.

pecial to the Globe. WASECA, Minn., July 13 .-- At the assembly at 7 this evening a reception was given to Dr. Vincent and the class of '87 o hours followed on the plans at the tabernacle, and at 8 p. m. John campaign work, as reported Dewitt Miller lectured on the "Three-Thirds of Man." The lecture was well received, and the speaker received many very flattering compliments from the great number who heard him. The day great number who heard him. The day closed with the annual Chautauqua camp-fire at 9:30 p.m. The Rochester band was on the ground, and made sweet music during the entire day. The large auditorium was filled to overflowing, and the people could not obtain standing room during the presentation of diplomas to the classs of '87, and the address by Rev. J. H. PATRIARCHS IN COUNCIL.

A Great Gathering at Milwaukee of the Patriarchial Circle.

MILWAUKEE, July 13 .- Nearly all the temples which will attend the conclave of the Patriarchial circle have arrived in the city. Yesterday afternoon temples arrived from Portage, Sheboygan, ples arrived from Portage, Sheboygan, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Red Wing, Bloomington, Ill., and Chicago, Morris and Englewood. The two largest delegations are those from Wankesha and Grand Rapids, which number about forty members each. At 9:30 o'clock this morning the members of the supreme temple were escorted to the hall where the session of the supreme temple is being held. At the hall the patriarchs were welcomed by Mayor Wallber and Secretary of State Timme, representing Gov. Rusk, who was unable to be present. The supreme temple was resenting Gov. Rusk, who was unable to be present. The supreme temple was presented with a handsome silk banner bearing the emblems of the order, which was the gift of the lady friends of the Milwaukee patriarchial. This evening there will be a concert and ball at Schlitz's park. Nearly all the visiting delegations are accompanied by ladies, who wear pansy badges of the ladies' degree. Among the prominent members who are in the city are M. T. Kreuger, editor of the Patriarchial, published at Michigan City, Ind., and L. A. Flagler, of Ottumwa, Io., supreme ruler'of the order. To-morrow morning there will be an excursion to Waukesha, and in the afternoon the prize drill will and in the afternoon the prize drill will be held at the exposition building.

Valuable Pabers Recovered.

pecial to the Globe.

MILAN, Minn., July 13.—Great excitement occurred here about noon yester day as A. Anderson, dealer in general merchandise, announced that a pocket-book containing $4,000 worth of valuable papers was stolen out of his safe. The empty pocketbook was found in T. An-derson's lumber yard, which led to the discovery of the thief, and after a while the papers were also found scattered around in the back yard.

The Chinch Bug in Iowa.

The Largest Port Huron Has Had

for Years.

PORT HURON, Mich., July 13 .- A most destructive fire broke out yesterday afternoon in the engine room of Cooley & Campbell's planing mill, corner of Water and Fourth streets, and spread with frightful rapidity to their large lumber yard and sheds, and from these to yard and sneus, and from these to several snall tenement houses belonging to the Harrington estate, on Pine street, thence to W. R. Mulford's furniture factory on Water street, and to a building occupied by R. Caster, builder, then to Forrester & Vincent's grain elevator and a small adjacent tenement. The fire was intensely hot and seemed to lick up the piles of seasoned lumber and the sheds and buildings with unusual relish. The fire department fought the fiames bravely, often to their peril, as for some time it was feared the whole block, the heart of the city would be in imminent danger. The wind gradually changed to their advantage and with the hard work of the firemen the flames were finally brought under control. The Farmers' elevator, owned by McMorran & Co., was so heated from the flames several small tenement houses belong-& Co., was so heated from the flames from the plauing mill that it was ex-pected to burst out in flames, but a slight shift of the wind saved it. UTICA, N. Y., July 12.—President Cleveland, with his wife, sister, Miss Hastings (his niece), Col. Lamont and E. Prentiss Bailey, of Utica, came down from Holland Patent on the special coach "Coronet" at 9 o'clock this morning. They were met by Prof. Hoyt and a number of ladies and gentlemen of the centennial committee from Clinton. Prof. Hoyt made a brief address of welcome, to which the president responded come, to which the president responded in a few words. The Utica Jacksonians, 100 strong, with the Twelfth (U. After the parade the president spent an hour in receiving callers at Mrs. Williams' home, and over 3,000 people were presented. The exercises in the park did not commence until nearly 2 o'clock. Rev. Henry Darling, president of Hamilton college, offered the opening prayer. Rev. E. P. Powell then made an address of welcome, to which the president responded as follows:

The parsident is specified in the president responded as follows:

The parsident's specific and by no means certain of my standing here among those who celebrate the centernial of Clinton's existence as a villiage. My recollections of the place reach backward but about thirty-six years, and my residence here covered a very brief period. But these recollections are fresh and distinct to-day, and pleasant, too, though not entirely free from somber coloring. It was here in the school at the foot of College hill that I began my preparation for college life and enjoyed the anticipation of collegiate education. We had two teachers in our school. One became afterward a judge in Chicago, and the other passed through the legal profession to the ministry and within the last two years was living father west. I read a little later with two other boys in the class. I think I floon. living father west. I read a little later with two other boys in the class. I think I floundered through four books of the Æneid. The other boys had nice large modern editions of Virgil, with large print and plenty of notes to help one over the hard places. Mine was a little old-fashioned copy which

MY FATHER USED BEFORE ME,
with no notes, and which was only translated by hard knocks. I believe I have forgiven these other boys for their persistent refusal to allow me the use of their notes in their books. At any rate, they do not seem to have been overtaken by any dire retribution, as one of them is now a rich and prosperous lawyer in Buffalo, and the other is a professor in your college and orator of to-day's celebration. Struggles with ten lines of Virgil, which at first made up my daily task, are amusing as remembered now,
but with them I am also forced to remember that instead of being the beginning of higher education, for which I honestly longed, they occurred near the end of my school advantages. This suggests disappointment which no lapse of time can alleviate, and a deprivation I have sadly felt with every passing year.
I remember Beneni Butler and his store. I don't know whether he was an habitual poet
or not, but I have heard him recite one poem of his own manufacture which embodied an account of a travel to or from Clinton in the early days. I can recall but two lines of the poem, as follows:

"Paris hill came next in sight.

And there we tarried over night."
I remember the next door neighbors, Drs.
Bissell and Scallard—and good, kind neighbors they were, too. Not your cross, crabbed kind, who could not bear to see a boy about.
It always seemed to me that they drove very fine horses, and for that reason I thought they must be extremely rich. I don't know that I should indulge in further recollections that must seem very little like a centennial history, but I want to establish as well as I can my right to be here. I might have spoken of the college faculty who cast such a pleasing though

Sober Shade of DIGNITY
over the place, and who, with other educated and substantial citizens, made up the best of social life. I was a boy then, but, notwitistanding, I believe I absorbed a lasting appreciation of the intelligence, of the refinement which made this a delightful home. I come Guest from the White House." A large number of ladies called upon Mrs. Cleveland during her reception. Utica is decorating handsomely for the reception of the president this evening. He will return at 6 p. m. and remain as Senator Kernan's guest until 2 a. m. tomorrow, when he will leave for Forestport.

AT THE BANQUET, in response to the toast, "The President of the United States," President Cleve-land spoke as follows: "I am inclined of the United States," President Cleveland spoke as follows: "I am inclined to content myself on this occasion with an acknowledgement on behalf of the people of the United States of the compliment which you have paid to the office which represents their sovereignty, but such an acknowledgement suggests an idea, which I cannot refrain from dwelling upon for a moment. That the office of president of the United States does represent the sovereignty of 60,000,000 of people is to my mind a statement full of solemnity, for this sovereignty I con-ceive to be the working act or enforce-ment of the divine gift of man to gov-ern himself and a manifestation of God's ern himself and a manifestation of God's plans concerning the human race. Though the struggle of political parties to secure the incumbency of this office and the questionable methods sometimes resorted to for its possession may not be akin with this idea, and though the deceit practiced to mislead the people in their choice, and its too frequent influence in their suffrage, may surprise us, these things should never lead us astray in our estimate of this exalted position and its value and dignity, and though your fellow citizen. nity, and though your fellow citizen, who may be chosen to perform for a time the DUTIES OF THE HIGHEST PLACE should be badly selected, and though the best attainable results may not be reached by his administration, yet the reached by his administration, yet the exacting watchfulness of the people, freed from the disturbing turmoil of political excitement, ought to prevent mischance to the office which represents their sovereignty, and should reduce to a minimum the danger of harm to the state. I by no means underestimate the importance of the utmost care and circumspaction in the selection of the incumspection in the selection of the in-cumbent. On the contrary, I believe there is no obligation of citizenship that demands more thought and conscientious deliberation than this, but I am speaking of the citizen's duty to the office and the selected incumbent. This office and the selected incumbent. This duty is only performed when in the interest of the entire people the full exercise of the powers of the chief magistracy is insisted on, and when for the people's safety a due regard for the limitations placed upon the office is exacted. These things

SHOULD BE ENFORCED by the manifestation of a calm and enlightened public opinion. But this should not be stimulated by the mad clamor of disappointed interest, which, without regard for the general good or allowance for the exercise of official clamor of disappointed interest, which, without regard for the general good or allowance for the exercise of official judgments, would degrade the office by forcing compliance with selfish demands. If your president should not be of the people and one of your fellow citizens, he would be utterly unfit for the position, incapable of understanding the people's wants and careless of their desires; that he is one of the people implies that he is subject to human frailty and error. But he should be permitted to claim but little toleration for mistakes. The generosity of his fellow citizens should alone decree how far good intentions should excuse his short comings. Watch well, then, this high office, the most precious possession of American citizenship; demand for it the most complete devotion on the part of him to whose custody it may be entrusted, and protect it not less valiently from unworthy assaults without. Thus will you perform a sacred duty to yourselves and to those who may follow you in the enjoyment of the freest institutions which heaven has ever vouch-safed to man. safed to man.

The Further Programme

Syracuse, N. Y., July 13.-President Cleveland will be the guest of Secretary Fairchild at Cazenovia on Monday next. A Cordial Invitation.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 13 .- If a cor dial invitation will bring President Cleveland West during the autumn he will certainly come. A committee, of which Gov. Knott, of Kentucky, is chairman, and which is organizing a great industrial and commercial convention for Kentucky in October, held a vention for Kentucky in October, held a meeting to-day and will in a few days forward to the president a pressing invitation from the committee, from the governor, from the city authorities of Louisville, the board of trade and all the important civic organizations. The invitation is for Thursday, Oct. 4, but it is very well understood that they will be pleased to have the president at any date that may have the president at any date that may be convenient for him. The industrial and commercial convention is the most important congress of the kind undertaken in the South since the close of the war, and the president is to be in-vited to open the proceedings with an address. The presidential visit will also occur during the holding of the Southern exposition in Louisville.

FINANCE AND TARIFF.

Opinions of Leading Democrats on the Vexed Question.

St. Louis, Mo., July 13 .- The Repub lican will publish to-morrow a number of letters from leading Democratic congressmen who have been conspicuous in connection with the finance and the tariff. The letters are in answer to a tariff. The letters are in answer to a series of interrogatories recently sent them by the Republican. These are: First. Is there a practical basis of compromise through which the Democrats in the house can unite. Second. Would an equal cut of internal and tariff taxes afford such a basis. Third. Assuming this acceptable, is it feasible to carry the element of compromise into the selection of the tariff schedule. Fourth. Are there concessions of any other selection of the tariii schedule. Fourth.

Are there concessions of any other kind the majority of the party can offer without sacrifice of principle. Fifth, Would a caucus further the accomplishment of the desired end? Speaker Carlisle says, in his opinion, the revenue will be reduced at the next session. The necessity of an immediate reduction of revenue in order to prevent. reduction of revenue in order to prevent large accumulation is so apparent that congress cannot afford to further delay a consideration of this question. There will be differences of opinion, but these will be differences of opinion, but these can be reconciled on some basis which will secure substantial relief. Benton McMillin, of Tennessee, says an equal or nearly equal cut of international and tariff taxes would afford a basis of compromise. He favored a repeal of the oppressive internal taxes, and believed tariff on necessities should be reduced. He believed a caucus of the party could get near the practical solution. Representative Breckenridge, of Kenteky, is in favor of a real revision of the tariff, the in-crease of the free list by placing thereon crease of the free list by placing thereon raw materials and necessaries. As the revenue must be reduced he thought there was a wide margin for concession, and he was prepared to argue upon a reduction in both internal and tariff taxes. OUR ONE VOLCANO.

A Graphic Description of the Only American Volcano.

NEW YORK, July 13 .- A Herald spe cial from El Paso says: "I have just re-turned from the scene of the only active volcano in North America. The volcano lies twelve miles, as the crow flies, from Bavispe, in the state of Sonora, in the extreme northwest corner of Mexico. A rough estimate will place the distance from El Paso at 400 miles, calculating on a bee line. The ragged and desolate nature of the country, the infrequency of its springs, and the almost deadly heat that exists there nine months out of the twelve have effectually kent out. heat that exists there nine months out of the twelve have effectually kept out the American prospector, although the mountains are full of gold, and even the hardy Mexican has largely left it to its primal solitude. Here and there are scattered villages, of which Bavispe is a type. It contains about 2,500 souls, if you count a soul to each inhabitant. They are so miserably poor and live in a condition of such indescribable squalor and perpetual misery that their lot compares unfavorably with the wandering coyote, their nearest neighbor. We went by way of the Carralitos bacienda, on the Britton Davis ranch, lying about due east of Bavispe, in the state of Chithe Britton Davis ranch, lying about due east of Bavispe, in the state of Chihuahua. It was from this point that the real journey commenced.

TO CONCEIVE THE FATIGUE
and ardor of the trip one must add a blazing sun that seared and shriveled the very granite, a parched and alkali laden wind blowing at midday, and filling the threat with smarting reactions.

laden wind blowing at midday, and filling the throat with smarting particles, and a reflection from the earth that was like the breath of a furnace. The eighth day brought the explorers into the vicinity of Bavispe, but a little prior to this we had the first intimation of cosmic disturbance in the shape of a fluttering tremor of the earth. The shocks, which were slight and undulating, increased in frequency as we drew near the town. On the 1st of last May, just at the gray of dawn, the vil-May, just at the gray of dawn, the villagers were awakened by a sickening shudder of the earth, followed by a quick tremor that reduced half of the adobes of the place to ruins. Since quick tremor that reduced half of the adobes of the place to ruins. Since that morning of desolation and terror there has been no day unaccompanied by an earthquake. Sometimes it has been so violent as to loosen masses of rock and open vast fissures in the mountain side, and sometimes it is an almost imperceptible vibration, but never has it entirely geased, and the never has it entirely ceased, and the superstitious Mexicans have given themselves up to the apathy of despair. Our appearance, which in other times would have convulsed the village with excitement, scarcely attracted attention. A few half naked men and haggard women straggled out of their tenements women straggled out of their tenements of brush to meet us, but many merely glanced from their open doorways and made no signs. The town, or rather what was the town, looks like the broken toy village of a child. There is NOT A HOUSE LEFT STANDING. Shattered heaps of adobes and yawning holes mark their former place, and mingled in the ruin are the few utensils mingled in the ruin are the few utensils of their domestic life, for which a super-stitious terror forbade them to return. Many have gone toward the South, but the bulk of the people are far too poor to undertake a journey which, without resources, means death, and so they have camped within sight of the wreck of their homes in mute and pathetic helplessness. The mortality which at-tended this disaster must have been great, but it was almost impossible to draw any of them into conversation, and quite so to obtain any accurate information. Over twenty sunken places marked recent graves, and as many more dead are probably lying in the ruins. From Bavispe we had our first sight of our objective point, the volcano.

A pennant of smoke, trailed by the wind from a low, square-topped peak to the southeast, defined its location, while a dull and muttering roar, almost incessant, told that the torches of nature were at work.

THE VOLCANO LIES about twenty miles from the site of the town, but over such an extraordinary broken tract of country that we realized at once that it would require two days' at once that it would require two days; journey to reach it, and pushed straight ahead without delay. The phenomena which we had observed at Bavispe increased in volume as we approached the mountain. We followed the dry stream, which at some forgotten period had worn a causeway through the granite. It was broken by fissures of evident regent origin running from porth to south cent origin, running from north to south and in some cases four or five feet broad, and of unknown depth. Spring-ing from one of these about four miles out, we encountered a geyser rivaling any of those in the National park. It is in the center of a circular basin with sides of sand and mud and about forty sides of sand and mud and about forty feet in diameter. At intervals of fifteen minutes an immense stream of boiling water leaps out up to a height of, I should judge, sixty feet. The geyser spouts for four or five minutes and then subsides as quickly as it came, disappearing with a mutter that reverberates far down into the bowels of the troubled earth.

A Prominent and Well-Known Citizen of Washington Assassinated.

The Affair Causes the Greatest Excitement Since Garfield's Murder.

Hand to Hand Battle at Youngstown, O., Between Railroaders and Police.

A Philadelphia Crank Kills His Wife and Then Attempts to Kill

WASHINGTON, July 13 .- The most sensational murder in Washington since the assassination of President Garfield, was committed this evening. Opposite the northeastern end of the treasury department building, Joseph C. Kennedy, attorney and real estate agent, one of the oldest residents of Washington, a personal acquaintance of many of the most prominent people of the national capital, was murdered in cold blood, apparently without provocation, by John Daily, a white laborer. A few minutes before 5 o'clock Kennedy left the office, crossed the street where he mailed several letters. He started to take a car, when within a few feet of the car, Daily, who had been loiterthe car, Daily, who had been loitering around the corner several hours, walked up behind him, drawing a large keen-bladed knife similar to those used by butchers in killing hogs, ran it into Kennedy's right side near the abdomen, with a vicious lunge and then gave it a jerk sidewise. A large crowd was on the corner at the time, but all were so horror stricken for a moment that nobody moved. Kennedy fell to the ground after giving a cry of "murder," groaned deeply and POINTED TO THE MURDERER, Mason, a colored watchman, seized Daily, who stood looking on apparently the most unconcerned, self-possessed man in the crowd. Kennedy expired in five minutes. The body was removed to the police station. The excitement rose rapidly. The crowd grew boisterous, threatening to hang the murderer. Daily paid little attention and refused to say why he committed the crime. Once, when provoked by the crowd, he turned squarely around and said: "Yes, I killed him, damn him." He is a man about fifty years of age and apparently a working man. At the station house he told a rambling, incoherent story about the affair, of which the general purport was that Kennedy had wronged his father years ago and secured property worth $4,000 for $900, and refused to make restitution. The murdered man was about seventy-live years old, and of an old Maryland family. In 1850 and 1860 Kennedy was commissioner of census. He was a prominent politician in earlier days, and an ardent adherent of the old Whig party. At one time he edited the Franklin (Pa.) Intelligencer. He was and intimate friend of ex-Senator Conkling, Attorney General Garland, W. W. Corcoran, and a large number of other people. He leaves an unmarried daughter, Sallie Kennedy, a son, Joseph Kennedy, one married daughter, wife of Gen. Biddle, a wealthy Californian. Kennedy was a man of considerable property.

A Regular Pitched Battle.

Youngstown, O., July 13.-A regula pitched battle between about fifty Pittsburg & Western railroad employes, mostly Italians on one side, and the city police force with twenty-five specials, office force with twenty-twe specials, city engineer and street commissioner's force, every member of the city council and the fire department, under the leadership of Marshal Williams, on the other, took place this afternoon. Conother, took place this afternion. Contractor Kelly, of the Pittsburg & West-ern, had a construction train standing across Mell street, making a road bed about three feet above its grade, about three feet above its grade, when the city forces, at a given signal blown on the fire whistle, put in an appearance, and two well-directed streams from three-inch nozzles soon drowned the railroaders out. They deserted their locomotive and cars and the police mounted the engine. The railroaders rallied and climbed upon it, and a battle took place. Revolvers were drawn. The police used their clubs and both parties fought until they all and both parties fought until they all tumbled out of the engine cab. By this time 2,000 people had congregated, and a hand-to-hand fight occurred. The police again captured the locomotive and pulled the train out of reach. Several arrests were made, among them Contractor Kelly, who is in the lock-up. The city forces are now shoveling away the obstructions.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

A Crank Kills His Wife and Then

Himself. PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 13 .- Earnest Kelly, a moulder by trade, who has been morose and despondent for some time, went walking in Fairmount park this morning with his wife. After they agreed with each other they should die agreed with each other they should the together they went to a secluded spot, and Kelly deliberately shot his wife through the head. She fell, and he fired another shot into her breast and then shot himself three times, once in the temple, once in the mouth, tearing away four teeth and again in the breast away four teeth, and again in the breast He then lay down, calmly awaiting death. He lingered consciously, however. Feeling thirsty he started to crawl to a small stream, when a little girl noticed him. Seeing he was cov-ered with blood she called the park guard, who had him removed to the hos-pital. He crawled so far from the dead body of his wife, when discovered, nothing was known of her murder until Kelly related the story to the attendants at the hospital, and search was insti-tuted, which resulted in finding her body where she first fell. Kelly's wounds undoubtedly will result fatally. His neighbors say he was always morose and showed strong symptoms of insanity.
